BRUSH FIRE

Written by

Soundstage (an original sample, free to use)

EXT. DESERT HIGHWAY - DAY

Heat haze over a two-lane road. A FIRE ENGINE screams past a lone gas station.

RITA VANCE (40s, fire captain, soot on her collar) rides up front. Beside her, a rookie, DEV (20s), grips the dash.

DEV
How far?

RITA
Far enough that it's already too late. Drive anyway.

Smoke climbs on the horizon, black and tall.

EXT. BURNING BUILDING - NIGHT

An old ranch hotel is on fire. Flames roll out of the upstairs windows. Sparks rain on the yard.

The fire engine skids in. Rita jumps down and hauls a HOSE toward the porch.

DEV
There's someone on the balcony!

A WOMAN in a nightgown waves from the second floor. The balcony sags.

RITA
Ladder. Now.

INT. AIRPLANE CABIN - DAY

Weeks later. A quiet flight. Rita sleeps in a window seat with a bandaged arm.

Dev, across the aisle, reads a newspaper. The headline: LOCAL CREW SAVES SIX.

DEV
(to himself)
Seven, counting me.